

UNHEARD VOICES WORKSHOP:

Diversity & Inclusion in the Environmental Movement

Saturday, January 23rd

PART 1:

9AM - 12PM

Open to all UCLA students

Racial Equity Training

Sustainability Through an Equity Lense

Space for questions

PART 2:

1PM - 5PM

Open to representatives from UCLA Sustainability Groups

Work within LA communities as a UCLA Student Training

Hear from and network with community organizers.

Register in Advance!
(open to first 300 responses)

<https://forms.gle/nQtS7enQEhFaQdd59>

JONI BROWN - Racial Equity

Joni Brown is a first-year graduate student in Health Psychology. Her research focuses on racial discrimination experienced by Black/African American women and maternal and infant health outcomes. She is also interested in understanding how interpersonal and institutional racism influences physical and mental health indicators in Black women.

DANIELLE HOAGUE - Justice in the Environmental Movement

Danielle Hoague (she/her) is a second-year Ph.D. student in the UCLA Environment and Sustainability program pursuing interdisciplinary research in environmental justice and science and technology studies. Her research explores the political exchange between scientific knowledge and community activism that produces disparate health outcomes for disadvantaged communities in the Los Angeles region.

VENEZIA RAMIREZ - Working within the Community

Venezia Ramirez (she/hers) is an Early Career Fellow within the Center for Diverse Leadership in Science and is finishing up her Bachelor's in Environmental Science. She co-facilitates the community engagement program K-12 Outreach and co-facilitates the Environmental Justice Working Group. Her future plans consist of making climate change solutions and sustainability initiatives in Los Angeles be more inclusive towards communities like hers.

Community
Organizers from...

TREEPEOPLE
www.treepeople.org

... and more!